

Mooney Strike Is a Failure, Leaders Admit

Predicted Protest Walkout Fails to Materialize; New York Undisturbed, Seattle and Chicago Quiet

Federation Refused to Act

Labor's Stand at Atlantic City Convention Clinched the Fate of the Plan

The collapse of the general strike for this week by the International Workers' Defence League is as complete as the figures submitted to the committee on organization of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City by the proponents of the strike indicated it would be. These figures showed that out of the 3,000,000 men and women affiliated with the Federation but 125,000 had voted on the proposition and but 88,000 had voted in favor of it.

Even the accuracy of these figures was not guaranteed.

Federation Not to Act

The sole hope of the advocates of the general strike at Atlantic City was for the Federation to give them some aid out, either by assuming responsibility for the strike or arranging to take a referendum vote on a strike in September. The Federation did neither, leaving it to the strike advocates to explain failure on the ground of the opposition of the men who were expected to strike.

At that time it was apparent that the only spots where trouble might be looked for were Seattle, Detroit and Chicago, where to the last brave talk was made by the strike advocates of hundreds of thousands of workers striking. Seattle, having had its fill of general strike, has kept serenely at work. Detroit to date has been quiet, while Chicago's labor pool is not much more troubled than usual.

No Strike in New York

In New York the Mooney strike has not caused a ripple. There are some thousands of cigarmakers on strike, as well as several thousands in the garment trades, but these are out of purely personal reasons. The army of 600,000 which was to lay down its tools here as a protest against the continued incarceration of Mooney did exactly as it was expected to do—forget all about the engagement.

The collapse of the strike is not a crushing disappointment to those who had it in charge. Anton Johansson, who since the physical breakdown of Edward D. Nolan has been the dominating spirit in the Mooney movement, on his last visit to New York in June told his friends that he did not look for anything like a big demonstration. "But," said he, "if no one strikes, we will have accomplished what we set out to do—attract the attention of the world to the injustice being done Tom Mooney."

Movies Will Help Fighting Men to Pick Out New Jobs

Different Trades Will Be Pictured, So That Soldiers and Sailors May Decide What Will Fit Them

Realizing that thousands of former service men are unwilling to return to their pre-war occupations, the Reemployment Committee for Soldiers, Sailors and Marines will inaugurate a new division at its headquarters, 505 Pearl Street, to-morrow, to enable the men to make up their minds just what they want to do.

The main feature of the division will be a series of motion pictures exhibiting in detail the nature and requirements of the various industries. The service men will thus get an opportunity to select the occupation for which they think themselves best fitted.

The innovation, according to Alfred L. Smith, executive secretary of the reemployment committee, will benefit both industry and the men themselves, in view of the fact that there is a scarcity of office positions in New York just now, while at the same time there is a strong demand for skilled tradesmen. Besides, he points out, the industries present opportunities for outside work at wages much higher than office employment, and meeting more equally the present high cost of living.

While the men who can obtain their old positions are encouraged to return, said Mr. Smith, those who do not feel they would be happy in an office again will be invited to view the "movie jobs" and take their choice. The new effort will also fit many men in useful occupations, he said, instead of returning them to positions filled by war men who are doing as well as the men.

Scores of men, added Mr. Smith, who formerly worked in offices, have already been sent to shipyards around New York, and hundreds of jobs are now available here for men who can stand this kind of work. Of 650 clerks who have consulted the vocational advisers more than 350 have agreed to change their vocations. Of 700 unskilled men interviewed nearly 600 were directed to apprenticeships. Six hundred and fifty men have been enrolled in special courses and 130 have been directed to educational institutions.

Mr. Smith said it has cost the bureau about $3.75 to obtain a job for a former soldier, sailor or marine. Had the bureau been receiving the first week's pay of each man placed, as is the custom with the commercial employment agencies, it would have received $76,250 since April 24, when it started.

With the forcible deportation recently of a number of leaders who caused the strikes in Mexico City, Mexican authorities believed they had completely suppressed I. W. W. agitation.

Irish Asylum Attendants Strike and Get More Pay

DUBLIN, June 24 (Correspondent of The Associated Press).—The strike fever in Ireland has extended to the insane asylums in Monaghan and Clonmel, the attendants demanding better pay and shorter hours. Only two doctors, a clerk and a storekeeper remained to attend 700 patients. About a score of the lunatics escaped and wandered about the country. The strikers assisted in the care of the suicidal and had cases.

The demands of the strikers were granted later by the authorities.

Railroad Lines in Portugal Tied Up as Result of Strike

WASHINGTON, July 5.—All railroad lines of Portugal are affected by a strike which was called Tuesday night, and government troops are protecting a number of railroad stations, the State Department was advised to-day from Lisbon. Only the lines to the south and southeast of Lisbon are in operation.

Some sabotage is being resorted to by the strikers, and the government is taking steps to prevent further molesting of property. The Minister of Labor, at a meeting between the strikers and the railroad representatives, informed the men that they can not expect assistance from the government so long as any of their number seek to destroy property.

Who Won Fight? Asks Hamby "Champ Got Some Walloping," Is Bandit's Comment

OSSINING, July 5.—Imprisonment in Sing Sing's deathhouse, prison attendants revealed to-day, has not shorn Gordon Fawcett Hamby, the bank robber, convicted of murder in Brooklyn, of his sporting qualities.

"Who won the prize-fight?" queried Hamby of an attendant. He was told Dempsey had vanquished Willard in three rounds. "It must have been some walloping the 'champ' got," replied Hamby, "to go down so quickly and so heavily."

Hamby has received no visit nor any communication nor has he written any message since he entered Sing Sing a week ago.
